About

Across every continent, nurses and nursing professionals stand at the forefront of healthcare —delivering care, advancing research, leading innovation, and inspiring change. With deep gratitude for their ongoing dedication, we are proud to introduce the 9th International Conference on Nursing Science & Practice (Nursing Science-2025) taking place on September 15-17, 2025 in London, UK.

Nursing Science-2025, a gathering of nursing professionals, educators, researchers, and healthcare leaders from around the world. This conference provides an important platform to exchange knowledge, explore innovations in nursing education and clinical practice, and address the evolving challenges in healthcare.

The three-day program will include two days of in-person sessions featuring keynote presentations, panel discussions, workshops, and networking opportunities, followed by one virtual day designed to engage a wider global audience through interactive sessions and online presentations.

Nursing Science-2025 aims to collaborate, promote evidence-based care, and support the ongoing advancement of nursing as both science and practice. Join us as we come together to shape the future of nursing, share best practices, and inspire the next generation of nurse leaders.
